

Botanical Name: Eucalyptus leucoxylon macrocarpa 'Rosea'

Common Name: Red flowering white ironbark

Type of Plant: dicot: tree Character evergreen

Habit of Growth:

Overall Shape upright, rounded, shrubby tree, often multi-trunked, flakey gray to pinkish trunk

Height 15'-25' Spread 20' Growth Rate moderate

Environment:

Exposure outdoors prefers full sun

Soil good in most soils--tolerates alkaline soils

Hardiness hardy (zones 12-24) performs well near beach or desert

Morphology:

Leaves pinnate, alternate, lanceolate, gray-green color to 6" long, 1-1/2" wide

Flowers late summer to fall -- clusters of pinkish to red flowers-- bushy, dense stamens

Fruit 3/4" wide goblet-shaped capsule with distinct ribs

Propagation: seed

Usage: excellent lawn, patio or street tree widely adapted to most climates, good tree for small landscapes, shade tree

Landscape Care:

Watering drought tolerant -- but will take lawn watering if acclimated

Fertilizing none

Pruning thin, head back and shape as required, low maintenance

Pests/Diseases fairly pest free

Special Conditions

Origin: Australia Family: Myrtaceae