

Botanical Name: Chamaecyparis obtusa 'Nana Gracilis'

Common Name: Dwarf Hinoki cypress

Type of Plant: conifer; shrub Character evergreen

Habit of Growth:

Overall Shape treelike shrub w/unusual fan-shaped foliage, dark green color with an irregular, loosely held canopy

Height 4-6' Spread 3-4' Growth Rate slow

Environment:

Exposure outdoors prefers sun to partial shade - protect from hot dry winds

Soil moist, neutral, well-drained soil preferred

Hardiness hardy -- best in zones 4-16, 15-17

Morphology:

Leaves small green waxy scales forming flattened fan-shaped branchlets - dark green and lustrous above - somewhat golden at fan tips

Flowers inconspicuous

Fruit rounded cones to 1/2" across

Propagation: hardwood cuttings taken in fall or winter

Usage: excellent accent in Oriental and rock gardens, bonsai specimen - valued for handsome foliage and interesting form - excellent container plant

Landscape Care:

Watering needs regular watering to look good - be sure drainage is adequate

Fertilizing slow release at planting

Pruning none

Pests/Diseases root rot, tip burn in hot sun, salt burn in poor drainage

Special Conditions

Origin: Japan Family: Cupressaceae